ABSTRACT: Education, as a transformative process, unfolds the inherent potential and shapes the personality of an individual, preparing them for adult roles and responsible citizenship within society. Offering essential skills and knowledge, education cultivates concentration, hard work, and a sense of social responsibility to address societal challenges. Educated individuals actively contribute to social welfare, making education a potent instrument for social change. This reciprocal relationship between education and society underscores the societal influence on the form and nature of education. As society undergoes changes, education adapts, facilitating social transformation. This study explores the nexus between education and social change, focusing on the impact of social changes on the social behavior of students. By examining the influence of social stimuli, cultural factors, and group dynamics, the study delves into how these factors shape students' academic, social, intellectual, and cultural development. The investigation aims to elucidate the effects of social change on students' behavior, adjustment, and thinking, offering valuable insights into the intricate interplay between education and societal evolution.

INTRODUCTION

Education is a process which develops the inherent potential and personality of a person. This process helps him to play the role of an adult person in the society and prepares the person to become a member of the society and a responsible citizen. Provides necessary skills and knowledge. Through education, we are given a sense of concentration, hard work and social responsibility to solve the problems of the society. Educated people play active roles in the society and contribute to social welfare. Education is the most powerful instrument of social change. Man becomes modern through education and brings real change in the society itself. There is a deep connection between education and society. The process of education is a social process. It is the society itself that decides what should be the form of education given to its members. When the nature of society changes, the nature of education also changes and due to education, social change takes place. If social change is not considered mere social evolution but is called a purposeful social process or a planned social power, then education will be considered an important factor. It is a law of nature that every situation in the world And changes keep happening in Dasa. This sequence of changes always continues without stopping. Every inanimate and animate being or thing in the world keeps changing. Only matter and power which bring about change can be considered as changing factors. There are many types of changes, but here our aim is to change the social behavior of the students which leads to academic development, social development, intellectual development and cultural development in them. Social behavior arises due to social interaction or social influence. Due to social conditions, social stimuli are created by individuals or groups of individuals and cultural factors. Only after being influenced by these Social behavior is demonstrated. The impact of social change on the social behavior of students and how it affects their life and development is affected, this study will mainly be on this. Along with this, we will also discuss the topic that what effect does social change have on social behavior. What kind of changes take place in their adjustment and thoughts. Change is the law of nature which has been going on for centuries. The language, thoughts, needs, life, objectives, culture and civilization etc. This study will mainly be on this. Along with this, we will also discuss the topic that what effect does social change have on social behavior. What kind of changes take place in their adjustment and thoughts. Change is the law of nature which has been going for centuries. The language, thoughts, needs, life, objectives, culture and civilization etc. In some form, changes keep happening. With the change in language, all four are exchanged and new words objectives of life, needs, lifestyle, eating habits etc. of students keep changing with time and ideals.

Meaningofsocialchange-Natural

Change is a true phenomenon occurring continuously. Change means change, variation and manipulation in the previous situation and lifestyle. Student is also a social being, just like nature, he changes into a social being. Society is a dynamic institution, that is why the traditions, customs, fashion, manners and lifestyle of the society keep changing with the interpersonal relationships of the individuals, Changes are visible in every sphere of life like social, economic, political, education etc. According to Lamule's story changes have and will continue to happen in society due to many reasons. Changes the proof of survival of society. So society cannot develop without change.

Definition of social change

1. According to Kingslade Davis - "The change in the structure of society and its functions is called social change.
2. According to Dorsner and Gretzky - Change is social change, because all culture is social in its origin, meaning, and use.
3. McIver and Page - "The change occurring in the social structure or relations is called social change."

When there is a revolution in the ideas of development of students through education, then their behavioral also starts changing. Change can happen in social structure as well as in an organization.

3. The pace of change is faster in a free society and slow in a closed society,
4. Social change occurs only through change in physical and non-physical culture.
5. Changes occurring naturally and at an easy pace affect our surroundings and the social structure.
6. Changes can be both planned and unplanned.

Theories of social change

1. Periodic theory 2. Series theory 3. Cyclical theory

1. "Temporary Theory" This theory was propounded by Aang Bernay. According to this theory, social change occurs due to change in the technical talld. And it is related to their future development. In this, new inventions means discovery of new species and new elements. Society adopts these new discoveries and transforms them.

2. Chain theory The authors of this theory are Comte spencer and Karl Marx. He described the course of development of the society as very progressive and imagined the society to remain stable. Working for social change.

"Forms of social change - 1 Revolutionary change This is the first form in which change starts happening suddenly. It is true that change occurs due to new equipment and research. Research is also done through ancient knowledge, the scope of ancient knowledge increases so much that new knowledge starts being gained from it. This change happens due to technology, it is called evolutionary change, this change never ends.

2. Wavy change - In this change there fluctuations like waves, hence it is called wavy change in this the society sometimes moves towards progress and sometimes towards progress. 3. Cyclical change
The third form of social change is cyclical change. in this change, the events occur like a cyclone, sometimes the cycle of sunrise, middle dusk or beginning, rise, development and end events continues.

Impact of social changes on the social behavior of students: Social changes have a deep impact on the social behavior of students. Because a person is a social being, he has to live in the society from birth till death. According to the age level and birth order of the students, their behavior starts changing. When the child is small, he imitates his parents and as a situation comes like this. in which he starts playing the role of an ideal person. Due to which the society and then the nation all start becoming proud, this change also happens due to the change in their culture and thoughts due to their elders, parents and teachers Because the students are the future. of the nation. It is the teacher or guru who decides how to make this future, who through education provides all kinds of development like social, intellectual, spiritual, economic and cultural. By becoming a servant, he becomes a good person and is rich in nature. Change in the social behavior of students also occurs through education. Development of collective qualities, adjustment, spirit of cooperation etc. are to be learned.

Social behavior is the way people interact with and influence other people. The future can also be shaped by the influence of social behavior. Through purity of behavior and purity of conduct, a person achieves spiritual development and mental peace. Man is a social creature, hence he has to follow the rules of the society. We have to behave with the person in front of us in such a way that the feeling of belongingness is awakened in him.

CONCLUSION

Social changes have a great impact on the social behavior of the students. The behavior of the students also starts changing due to the environment in which they live. Brings the ability to socialize the child. Through education, a person brings about social change, due to this his social behavior also starts changing. Problem-solving, creative, intellectual power and skills start developing in them, and moral, social, and spiritual qualities start developing in that person. Positive sentiments.
